

- ☒ 1. Intro
- ☒ 2. CODE: Write and Run Your First C...
- ☒ 3. Compiled Languages vs Scripted L...
- ☒ 4. C++ Output and Language Basics
- ☒ 5. CODE: Send Output to the Console
- ☒ 6. How to Store Data
- ☒ 7. Bjarne Introduces C++ Types
- ☒ 8. Primitive Variable Types
- ☒ 9. What is a Vector?
- ☒ 10. C++ Vectors
- ☒ 11. C++ Comments
- ☒ 12. Using Auto
- ☒ 13. CODE: Store a Grid in Your Progr...
- ☒ 14. Getting Ready for Printing
- ☒ 15. Working with Vectors
- ☒ 16. For Loops
- ☒ 17. Functions
- ☒ 18. CODE: Print the Board
- ☒ 19. If Statements and While Loops
- ☒ 20. Reading from a File
- ☒ 21. CODE: Read the Board from a File
- ☒ 22. Processing Strings
- ☒ 23. Adding Data to a Vector
- ☒ 24. CODE: Parse Lines from the File
- ☒ 25. CODE: Use the ParseLine Function
- ☒ 26. Formatting the Printed Board
- ☒ 27. CODE: Formatting the Printed Bo...
- ☒ 28. CODE: Store the Board using the ...
- ☒ 29. Great Work!

Working with Vectors

You declared and initialized vectors in a previous notebook, but in order for the vector to be useful, you will need to be able to retrieve the vector elements. You will learn about vector access in this notebook, along with some other useful vector features.

Saving Graffiti Recording. Please wait...